Sec. 4-1. Purposes of the residential districts.

- (a) The purpose of the R-LD residential low-density district is to provide appropriate areas for low density single-family residential development and promote a suitable residential environment with necessary community facilities and public services. The district is intended to preserve the predominant character of established neighborhoods with relatively large lots and to afford protection from encroachment by potentially incompatible nonresidential and higher density residential uses. It is also intended for application in areas that are not yet fully developed, where agricultural activities, forestlands or open areas remain and where public utilities are not yet provided or may not be provided in the future.
- (b) The purpose of the R-1 residential district is to provide appropriate areas for moderate density single-family residential development and promote a suitable residential environment with necessary community facilities and public services. The district is also intended to preserve the predominant character of established neighborhoods and protect single-family residential areas from encroachment by potentially incompatible nonresidential uses and higher density residential uses.
- (c) The purpose of the R-2 residential district is to provide appropriate areas for moderate density residential development and promote a suitable residential environment with necessary community facilities and public services. Although the primary intended use is single-family detached, the district also provides for flexibility in housing types by permitting two-family dwellings and townhouses at densities compatible with single-family detached. The district is also intended to preserve the predominant character of established neighborhoods and protect them from encroachment by potentially incompatible nonresidential uses and higher density residential uses.
- (d) The purpose of the R-3 residential district is to provide for a variety of housing types at medium to high density in a suitable residential environment protected from encroachment by incompatible nonresidential uses. The district is intended to be applied to areas having convenient access and adequate services and facilities for residents with minimal impact on minor streets and lower density neighborhoods. The lot size, density, open space, yard and other requirements of the district are intended to avoid congestion and overcrowding of land, promote a compatible mixture of housing types and avoid undue burden on public services.
